

Hosting Upgrade Appeal

Dear Visitor. The Tap has become increasingly busy over the last few weeks with many more visitors and sign ups. It's currently creaking and slowing. We need a hosting account upgrade to help cope with the increased activity and keep this free blog online. In this age of great change The Tap is a valuable independent resource where we can come together and share information the controlling parasites would rather we didn't have. It would be sad to lose it but it costs to keep it going and free to use. If any of you can help donate even a small amount towards the hosting upgrade that would be a big help. Your small donation makes a huge difference. Thank you in advance. Click here to donate

Was Syria abandoned by Iran and Russia?

Well, Arab Militaries...

... I want to remind AGAIN about the article by Colonel Atkine—Why Arabs Lose Wars. If one disregards the nonsense Atkine writes about Soviet Armed Forces, of which he has about zero knowledge, his delving into the nature of Arab militaries is valid, as are testimonies of a majority of Soviet/Russian military advisers who trained, as an example, Iraqi and Syrian militaries. I knew a few of them really well.

Allegedly, these are “opposition” forces already in Presidential Palace in Damascus.

Now, classic Arab apologetics starts with blaming everybody but themselves. Here is a classic Middle Eastern Army—selling itself to the highest bidder.

The Syrian Army command announced on Sunday that President Bashar Assad's 24-year rule has come to an end, according to a Syrian officer who spoke to Reuters. The announcement follows a rapid offensive by jihadist forces in the capital. The jihadists claim that Damascus is “now free of Assad” and are expected to make their first public statement via state TV, Reuters reports, citing two anti-government sources. In response to the political uncertainty, Prime Minister Mohammad al-Jalali stated that he is “ready to cooperate with any leadership chosen by the people,” as quoted by Al Jazeera. He added that he remains at home and is inclined to support the continuity of government.

The question always is how much is worth Arab military high ranking officer(s) for betrayal. Evidently, as early as the last week Iran (if to believe WSJ) told official Damascus about reducing its military aid and started removing command of some of its forces from Syria. Syrian Girl reports that SAA “was ordered not to fight”. I don't doubt for a second that there was a high level military-intel treason, but let's also face the fact that if not for Russian and Iranian forces in Syria it wouldn't have survived by now. In other words—it takes outside forces to prop up most of regional militaries.

Now about hysterics re: Russia, especially by all kinds of “concerned citizens”. If to believe reports about Assad family flying to Moscow (big if, though)—it becomes clear that Russia knew what was afoot. Fast advancement of the HTS forces and cowardly abandonment of Syrian towns and cities by SAA was not due to HTS military prowess but due to SAA ceasing to exist as a viable fighting force due to corruption, military incompetence, cowardice and treason—all classic traits of such militaries. But as I repeat ad nauseam—Russian bases in Syria ARE NOT there to “defend” Syria, let alone fight the war for Syrians... again. If Syrians do not want to fight for their country, neither does Russia, nor does Iran, as it should be. Is it bad? For Syria it certainly is, for Russia—let’s wait and see. Because Syria for Russia is not a priority.

Were Russian lives lost in Syria in vain? Absolutely, as far as the Syrian statehood is concerned—it is an undeniable fact and it merely reinforces a well established pattern of backstabbing being one of the major traits of the region. So, we have to wait and see how it plays out for Russia, but it is clear that Russia made a decision not to support official Damascus anymore, but Russia can reinforce her bases in the region if need be. The situation is very fluid and we need to be patient and very cautious in making conclusions before clearer picture emerges.

This was an arranged withdrawal by the look of it, dressed up as a war. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=shGDmOchriQ>

Which says a lot doesn't it. All fixed up behind the scenes by all the big players. Which means US, Israel, Russia and Turkey at minimum I suppose

But literally nobody in the media space is saying this as far as I know. Please correct me if I'm wrong

All the world IS a stage sometimes isn't it

If correct then, it's all been dressed up for western media consumption by the looks. War? What war? I see no evidence, just assertions

It would be interesting to know how the Russian media are spinning this. Anybody know?

Arranging the fall of Syria makes a nice send off for Biden maybe, with Ukraine having been less than a US/Biden success.

Is Syria a secret deal between Turkey and Russia – and Turkey's playing a double game? Anyone's guess. I know Danceaway doesn't like guesses, but why come on here if we don't play with ideas?

Unlike people like Patrick Henningsen, we are not officially journalists in any way, and can goof up with crazy notions. I always say there is no such thing as a dumb question...!

Russia wants to get out of Syria, so they manipulate Turkey to take over. That makes some sense to me. Assad wanted out as well. The war between Turkey and the Kurds will be the next phase, it seems.

Kurds are US proxy. Turkey is NATO. That's good for Russia, as it will focus western minds onto Syria while Russia is well out of it.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=oVzvHox0Avw> Lavrov giving the official view.

Alex Christoforou says Russia's Syrian bases are not as important as they used to be to Russia.

Turkey has shown her true colours as aligned with Israel and US.

Russia will negotiate a withdrawal with Turkey.

Iran is the biggest loser in the Syria collapse, as Iran becomes the new front line.
Economic war with Iran is starting.
I (Tap) wonder where Turkey goes from here.
Christianity in the Middle East is being eradicated.
Biden gets a big win, so too Israel. Turkey a winner, now controlling Syria.
Cyprus needs to be careful.
BUT – what happens with the Kurds, Turkey's enemies? Currently a US ally.
